his hire." It said the workman, but there are women who work too. Now, that would include the idea of fair, safe conditions of labor. If there are types of employment which are inherently dangerous, sometimes the compensation reflects that danger by paying people more. If you're in the military, they have what they call "hazardous duty pay." If you are in combat, you get more than if you're not. This idea is found throughout this society of equating compensation with the nature of the work that is done. Since the philosophy in this society...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...is well established that workers' comp is the thing, I see no reason why that protection should not be extended to every worker. But short of that, I'm going to support Senator Beutler's amendment. All this one does is say, if you're not going to cover these people, don't let them work under the misconception that they are covered as every other worker would be. You've got to tell them: here, you're on your own. Just as if you buy a used car and they write in the contract, "as is," you know it's up to you to examine what it is you're getting. If you know you have no coverage and any injury is going to leave you high and dry, you then are in a position to evaluate whether or not you want that job. Thank you, Mr. President.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Landis.

SENATOR LANDIS: Question.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Do I see five hands? I do. The question before the body is, shall debate cease? All those in favor vote aye; all those opposed vote nay. We're voting on ceasing debate. Have you all voted who care to? Senator Landis, for what point do you rise?

SENATOR LANDIS: I would like to have a roll call vote and a call of the house and I would accept call-in votes.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: There's been a request to place the house under call. All those in favor vote aye; all those opposed vote
